

We're called the University of South Australia.

But we're really a university for the whole world.

The University of South Australia is internationally recognised for offering professionally relevant and career focused programs, providing exemplary student support services and ensuring students have access to state-of-the-art facilities.

With more than 32,000 students from more than 90 countries we offer over 400 undergraduate, postgraduate and research programs across 40 discipline areas.

The University of South Australia is a member of Australia's powerful coalition of technology universities – the ATN (Australian Technology Network of Universities). The ATN has links with industry and the latest technology to provide career driven programs producing highly employable graduates who are job ready. In 2004 the Australian Universities Quality Agency (AUQA) awarded us with many commendations, including one for our international operations.
