

Research. Water Policies & Laws.

Centre for Comparative Water Policies and Laws

The driest state in the driest continent on earth:
what better place to form the Centre for Comparative Water Policies and Law?

The Centre undertakes major studies and consults on a number of water governance programs for corporations and the government to improve our ecological, environmental and social sustainability.

It is working on saving the Murray, the impact of water trading, water pricing policies for urban and rural dwellers and efficient irrigation systems.

For more information talk to Professor Jennifer McKay, Director of the Centre for Comparative Water Policies and Laws at the School of Commerce on 8302 3954 or visit the group's website at:

<http://business.unisa.edu.au/commerce/waterpolicylaw>

Division of Business