HISTORY
Architects formed the South Australian Institute of Architects (SAIA) in 1886 as a professional body representing architects which also helped to redefine architecture as a profession. The SAIA worked on behalf of architects with regard to architectural education, codes of ethics, regulations, conditions of contract and architectural competition regulations. In 1904 Walter Bagot designed the seal of the SAIA. A federation of all state institutes of architects in Australia was established and the Royal Australian Institute of Architects was incorporated in 1930. However the SAIA continued to call itself by its original name rather than become a chapter of the RAIA. In 1940 the Architects Board of South Australia was established in order to register architects under the newly passed Architects Act 1939. In 1962 the SAIA voted to surrender its identity and became the RAIA (SA Chapter). Also in the 1960s the RAIA (SA Chapter) operated a Small Homes Service which provided architect designed house plans for a nominal fee to the general public. The chapter was also a strong advocate for the Planning and Development Act of 1967. Since the federation of the institutes in 1930, many South Australians have served as national President of the RAIA: Philip Claridge, Guy St John Makin, Louis Laybourne Smith, Jack Cheesman, Wilfred Haslam, James Irwin, Jack McConnell, Gavin Walkley, Robert Cheesman, and David Parken. In August 2008, the Royal Australian Institute of Architects changed its name to the Australian Institute of Architects.

SA JUBILEE 150 MEASURED DRAWINGS COMPETITION 1986   S151 to S166

This competition was open to all interested parties. The primary objective of the competition was to ensure that an archival record of South Australia's built heritage could be established.

There were five sections, Open Category, Item on the State Heritage List, Student Entry, Fixed Item, Moveable Item. Sponsors were the Jubilee 150 Board, Peter Rosenweig Consultants Pty Ltd, Dare, Sutton Clarke Pty Ltd, and Hooper, Kohler, Birdsey Architects. Prizes of $3,000 (Open Category), and $500 (each for all the others) were awarded to winners of the categories.

An exhibition of entries was held at the Gallery of the Flinders Art Museum and these exhibitions were bought after recommendation by Donald Leslie Johnson from the organising committee of the R.A.I.A. and housed in the Flinders University Architectural Archives collection.

*Ownership of entries remains with the State Heritage Branch.

A GUIDE TO ADELAIDE ARCHITECTURE   SERIES 207/1-3

'A Guide to Adelaide Architecture' booklet was produced for the R.A.I.A. (S.A. Chapter) Information Division.

Research and text was by Donald Langmead and John Schenk, with students from the South Australian Institute of Technology. Production by Judith Brine, layout and illustrations by Zig Kapelis, photographs by Trevor Fox, University of Adelaide. The research and production team selected the buildings. They are intended to cover a range of building types and styles. Inclusion, in itself is not a measure of architectural merit, and omission certainly implies no criticism.

Note: Further information on some of these buildings is included in the South Australian Significant 20th Century Architecture Index S301
