

Help shape improved medication management in aged care homes

As part of our commitment to improving the quality use of medicines in aged care, we're inviting residential aged care homes to take part in a pilot project testing Quality Indicators (QIs) for medication management.

Who can participate?

Residential aged care homes with either of the following models in place:

- Residential medication management reviews (RMMRs)
- Aged Care on-site pharmacist (ACOP)

What's involved?

- Collect and report de-identified data for selected QIs using tools we provide
- Receive a tailored report with your results + de-identified benchmarking data
- Share your experience through a short feedback survey

Why participate?

- Gain insights into your medication practices and how they align with a national quality framework for medication safety in aged care
- Help shape future improvements in aged care homes + pharmacist services

Interested?

Visit our project website: <https://tinyurl.com/2b9javxy> or contact the project team, led by A/Prof Janet Sluggett, via email: ALH-PHARMA-Care@unisa.edu.au

This study has received ethical approval from the University of South Australia Human Research Ethics Committee (ID 206197).